

Chicago Cardinals

1953 PRESS, RADIO AND TELEVISION GUIDE

INTRODUCTION

The 1953 Chicago Cardinals Press, Radio and Television Guide includes statistics and other information concerning the Cardinals' thirty-three years of activity in the National Football League.

National League football nowadays is a full-time business, twelve months a year, similar to major league baseball in scope and fan interest. It's possible that your readers or listeners may come up with questions you are unable to answer. If this happens, send the letters along to us and we will consider it a privilege to answer them with your compliments.

If there is anything in the way of special information that you wish, don't hesitate to call or write us. We will provide regular news, feature stories and pictures.

We sincerely appreciate your wonderful cooperation in past years. In advance we say "THANKS A MILLION" for the same continued cooperation in the future.

CARDINALS OWNER

The Chicago Cardinals Football Club, the team which won the world championship in 1947 and the Western Division title in 1947 and 1948 is owned by Mrs. Violet M. Bidwill Wolfner.

In back of Mrs. Wolfner, and eventual heirs to the ball club, are Charles Jr. and Billy Bidwill, a pair of football-minded sons. Charles, 24 years old and known as "Stormy," is the new president of the Cards and a Member Board of Directors. Billy, a junior at Georgetown University, is vice-president and a Member Board of Directors.

Mrs. Wolfner became owner of the Cardinals upon the death of Charles W. Bidwill. Charlie's interests in sports were many and varied, including girls' baseball, football, horse and dog racing. One of the most popular sportsmen in the nation, his death April 19, 1947, was mourned by the top business and political figures in the United States, as well as everybody who came in contact with him.

Mrs. Wolfner is Chairman of the Board of Directors and takes an active interest in all of the Family enterprises.

Mrs. Wolfner and Mrs. Grace Comiskey, owner of Chicago White Sox, are the only feminine owners of major professional sports teams — and both clubs operate at the same stand — Comiskey Park.

CHARLES W. BIDWILL, President

Charles W. Bidwill, Jr., is in his third year as president of the Chicago Cardinals. "Stormy" as he is known throughout the sports world is 25 years old and during the past year has taken a very active interest in the management of the Cardinal organization.

"Stormy" recently completed his law studies at Georgetown University and is now a practicing lawyer in Illinois. Although young in years, Charles is long in experience with the sports world. His late father was associated with almost every sports venture that came into Chicago over a period of twenty-years prior to his death in 1947. Since childhood, Charles was a constant companion of his dad and as a result has had many years of experience to acclimate himself with the many duties required in operating a professional football team.

The Cardinals, now owned by Violet M. Bidwill Wolfner, have been in the Bidwill family since the early 30's and "Stormy" has known the teams' personnel, and much of its method of operation down through the years. He has attended league meetings and sat in on various discussions of the teams' problems, so he isn't what you would call a novice when it comes solving situations.

Charles is married to the former Patricia Shea of New York and has two daughters, Christine three years and Patricia nine months.

William V. Bidwill, younger son is vice president and also a member of the board of directors. Billy graduated from Georgetown this spring and is enrolled in the Northwestern Law School for the fall term.

WALTER H. S. WOLFNER

Managing Director

CHICAGO CARDINALS FOOTBALL CLUB

Walter H. S. Wolfner, now in his third year as the guiding genius of the Chicago Cardinals Football Club, is a forceful, energetic individual who will be satisfied only when he has the Cards on top in the National Football League.

In an effort to build the Cardinals into a championship ball club once again, Wolfner has reorganized the entire coaching staff with Joe Stydahar taking over the duties as head coach. In Stydahar, Wolfner feels that the Cardinals have obtained the services of a great coach who has proven himself in football's toughest competition.

Mr. Wolfner was born in St. Louis and attended Central High school there, playing third base for the baseball team and halfback on the football squad. Jim Conzelman, who coached the Cards in 1940-1-2 and 1946-7-8, was a star athlete at McKinley High. Central and McKinley were bitter rivals. Wolfner completed his education at Washington U. in St. Louis.

Saw service in World War I. Was a captain in the first division of the Infantry and was wounded three times.

Was associated in various business enterprises, including being president of a Coffee Brokers, Importers and Roasters Company.

Has a married daughter and a son, both of whom live in St. Louis. The son, Jack, was a talented baseball infielder who had a number of offers from major league clubs following his graduation from Quincy (Ill.) College. Jack decided to enter the business world instead.

Mr. Wolfner married Mrs. Violet M. Bidwill, widow of the late Cardinals owner in September, 1949. The Bidwill boys are sons of Violet and the late Charlie Bidwill, the latter died April 19, 1947.

CARDINALS' HISTORY

By Eddie McGuire

The Cardinals, World Champions in 1947 and Western Division title winners in 1947 and 1948, is the oldest professional football team in Chicago. The club was organized in 1899 as the Morgan A. C.

The name Cardinals resulted when the team, organized and owned by the late Chris O'Brien, bought some red jerseys, and inasmuch as they were playing at 61st and Racine, took the name of Racine Cardinals. The Racine part was dropped later on when there was a club organized in Racine, Wis., and the team has since been known as the Chicago Cardinals.

Down through the years, the Cards, in addition to Driscoll, have had such greats as Hugo Bezdek, Fred Gillies, Nick McInerney, Eddie Anderson, Rog Kiley, A. and R. Horween (Harvard graduates who played under the name of McMahan), Johnny Mohardt, "Red" Dunn, Lennie Sachs, "Gob" Buckeye, Pete Steger, Jack Crangle, Bob Koehler, Norman Barry, Wilfrid Smith (Tribune Sports Writer), Willis Brennan, Bill Whalen (Herald-American Sports Writer), Ernie Nevers, Mike Mikulak, George Grosvenor, Duke Slater, Tim Moynihan, Mikey McDonald, Frank McNally, Pat Coffee, Gaynell Tinsley, Doug Russell, Phil Handler, Marshall Goldberg and a host of others who were the headline grabbers of their day.

Professional football has come a long way since the early 1920's when, the two Horween boys of Harvard played under assumed names with the Cardinals. Their parents thought the pro game degrading and the general public looked upon pro football players as individuals who clawed, bit and kicked (and not the football), and wouldn't hesitate at gouging out an eye of the opposition.

Today National Football League clubs may carry 33 men on their rosters and most teams are right up to the limit. Chris O'Brien, original Cards owner who passed away last year, got a kick out of that.

"When the league started we carried from 14 to 16 players. Of course, carrying any more would mean going farther in the hole every payday because the money didn't come in at the gate, but there was an additional reason," said O'Brien. "We started eleven players, just like they do today, but if you took one of the players out for anything less than a broken leg or skull fracture, you had a guy on your hands who wouldn't talk to you for a week. None of the players wanted to sit on the bench, so it cost more for utility players than some of the men were in there playing sixty minutes."

Of course, those days are gone forever to pro football. Today most players specialize in offensive or defensive play. You have the two-three and four platoon system.

Practically all teams play the T formation and owners and coaches alike turn their heads and mumble a fervent prayer when their No. 1 quarterback gets out of the pocket and three or four huge linemen bear down on him.

The quarterback is a signal-caller, ball handler and top-ranking man on the field. Unless he is doing the punting, he's out of the game the minute his team gives up the ball.

This is part of football history — the Cardinals as well as other teams. In 1949 the Cardinals scored 360 points, averaging 30 per game. On Nov. 13, 1949, the Cards set a National Football league record by scoring 65 points in a game against the New York Bulldogs. That was just nine points less than the total of 74 scored in 12 games by the Cards during the entire 1936 season.

Football has moved along in the same manner as baseball. The home run and the quick touchdown thrust, increase the tempo and the pulse of the sports fan.

To get back to actual history—

The Cardinals vs. Bears series is the oldest rivalry in pro football, having started back in 1920. Regardless of the standings of these clubs, fans always look forward to a bitter battle whenever they meet.

In 1925 when the Cards won their previous championship the league had twenty member teams, a total exceeded only once in the league's 29 seasons of play, that being in 1926 when there were 22 teams.

In the 33 years the Cards have had three owners, Chris O'Brien selling to Dr. David J. Jones of Chicago on July 27, 1929, the later selling to the late Charles W. Bidwill, whose survivors, Mrs. Violet Bidwill Wolfner, and Sons Charles (Stormy) and Billy are the present owners.

CARDINALS COACHES

JOE STYDAHAR, Head Coach

"Jumbo Joe" Stydahar, who achieved greatness in Chicago as a tackle with the Chicago Bears, returns to the scene of his most memorable feats as a player, as coach of the Chicago Cardinals — most bitter rivals of the Bears.

Joe's record as a player and coach in the National Football League has no equal. In eight and one-half years as a Bears tackle he helped the North Siders win four world's championships and seven Western Division titles. After joining the Los Angeles Rams as an assistant coach the Rams started to move. In 1949, while still an assistant with the Rams, the team won Western Division honors but lost to the Philadelphia Eagles in the playoffs.

In 1950, when Stydahar took over as head coach, the Rams tied with the Bears for Western Division honors and then defeated his former mates in a playoff. However, a field goal by Lou Groza in the late seconds of the game gave Cleveland's Browns a 30-28 decision in the world's championship contest.

In 1951 Stydahar's leadership and inspiration led the Rams into the world's championship game and a 24-17 triumph over the Cleveland Browns. A misunderstanding led to Stydahar leaving the Rams early in 1952 but the big gent's love for the game resulted in his aiding Coach Gene Ronzani of the Green Bay Packers late in the 1952 season.

SO — in thirteen and one-half years in the league, teams which Joe has been associated with as a player, assistant coach and head coach, have won five world's championships and nine Western Division championships.

Joe was born in Kaylor, Pa., March 3, 1912 and moved to Shinnston, West Virginia at the tender age of four. While in high school he was selected to All-State football teams as a tackle and as a fullback and three times was picked as the top basketball center in West Virginia. In his spare time as a prep he played third base for the baseball team.

Entered the U. of Pittsburgh in 1932 but a few weeks later became homesick and returned home to attend the U. of West Virginia where he became an All-America tackle. Played in the East-West and Chicago Tribune College All-Star classics before joining the Bears for the 1936 season.

As a member of the Bears, Stydahar became an All-Time All-National Football league tackle and unquestionably will be front-center in Football's Hall of Fame.

Joe's tenure with the Bears was interrupted in 1943 when Uncle Sam decided that he needed him in the Navy, a situation which existed until near the end of the 1945 season.

A genial gent who can be tough when the occasion demands, Joe has the respect and admiration of all of his players. A student of the game and an advocate of the adage — "A good offense is the best defense," Stydahar goes all out for the idea of scoring early and often.

He likes to throw the ball because he feels that you'll get six points in your favor on the scoreboard a bit quicker that way. His big problem this year is the quarterback and end positions — most important to his idea of throwing. Six quarterbacks, all rookies, remained with the Cardinals as they started on their five-game pre-season schedule this year and Joe was to determine his starting signal-caller by the showing of these first-year men in these games.

Stydahar has never been with a loser and the spirit and attitude he has instilled in the 1953 Chicago Cardinals indicates his past record — never being with a loser — will continue intact.

He is now a resident of Glencoe, Ill., having recently purchased a home there. He is married and has two sons, six and one years of age.

DICK GALLAGHER, End Coach

Dick Gallagher, the only one of Joe Stydahar's three assistants who has had professional experience, comes to the Chicago Cardinals after three years as head coach at Santa Clara where he produced winning teams.

Dick will reside in Chicago during the season and feels that Chicago is the greatest city in the country. However, in his book, Ironton, O., where he was born Oct. 28, 1909, is the second best. Played football at Ironton high school and at Kentucky Wesleyan where he was an end and halfback.

Returned to Ironton to coach prep ball for ten years and had the distinction of starting Halfback George McAfee on his way to Chicago's Bears and fame as one of the greatest breakaway runners in football.

Dick's first college job was with William and Mary where he was an assistant, and after four and one-half years in the Navy, returned to William and Mary for one year. He then moved to the Cleveland Browns where he was an assistant to Paul Brown during the 1947-8-9 seasons. Moved to Santa Clara where he has been the past three years. Is married and has two daughters, five and eleven years old.

ERNIE JORGE, Line Coach

Ernie Jorge also has been a head coach in California the past two years — being head man at College of Pacific where his lines drew words of praise from just about everywhere. When Stydahr took over the Cardinals position, he made it plain that Jorge was one of the men he needed most.

Born in Turlock, California, Oct. 7, 1914, Ernie attended high school there and was one of California's outstanding prep guards, a position he played under Slip Madigan after enrolling at St. Mary's (Calif.).

Jorge (pronounced GEORGE) started coaching at Christian Brothers High in San Francisco and has been at it for fifteen years, the last six being at College of Pacific and the last two being as head coach when his teams have played in the Sun Bowl Game.

Is married and has an 11-year old daughter.

J. NEIL "Skip" STAHLEY, Backfield Coach

"Skip" Stahley has been backfield coach the past three years at the U. of Washington where he developed Quarterback Don Heinrich into one of the nation's outstanding stars.

Skip was born in Lebanon, Pa., forty-three years ago. Played football, basketball and baseball at Lebanon High and then moved on to Penn State where he played three years of football, basketball and lacrosse, and climaxed his football playing with the East-West Shrine game New Years' Day 1930. Obtained his Masters' Degree at Columbia in 1933.

His college coaching career includes Western Maryland (assistant four years), U. of Delaware (head coach 1934), Harvard U. (assistant six years), Brown U. (head coach three years), U. S. Navy at San Diego (head coach two years), George Washington U. (head coach two years), U. of Washington (assistant 1948), U of Toledo (head coach two years) and U. of Washington (assistant 1950 through 1952).

Stahley is married and has two daughters.
